

Common Rider, Deep Springs

Do you recall the long spring days we used to make love just to pass the time away hand in hand by the corner of the sea when no one was looking we dove into the deep

Do you think of me sometimes?
Did I slip your mind?
I always return to the deep deep spring

If you have the time I'd like to take you back 'cause the same sun sets by the same train track Do you recall the day you said to me
"souls like ours must touch to be free"

Chorus

I'm so close to you just like we used to do now I know that everything we ever said was true
All I know are trains and the fading of the light Forever in a zero hour between the day and night

Chorus

There is no one I could ever love like you
