

Confide, I Am Scared Of Me

We need to break the mould and hope theres something more than this wretched place called home
We must be more than this. Something had to be said before we follow the footsteps of everyone else
The world has eyes that see between you and me and how cruel we are.
Tell me I am born. Tell me I'm worth the ground you walked on.
O God, can you keep me grounded?
I don't wanna let this pull me under.
O God, keep me grounded.
Don't let this pull me under.
Why do we continue to live day by day without you?
Are we so proud to ever move out from this comfort?
Now I could never live without the strong beat that continues to pull me through these days that are
The world has eyes that see between you and me and how cruel we are.
Tell me I am born. Tell me I'm worth the ground you walked on.
I'm not home until I'm done in this place.
This is so clear to me.
This is understanding.
This is so clear to me.
This is understanding.
