

Connie Smith, You

There'll always be another tear there'll always be another year
There'll be another sky of blue
But no matter what may come or go just one thing I surely know
There'll never ever be another you
There'll always be another smile there'll always be another mile
There'll be another morning dew
Though years may come and years may go this one thing I surely know
There'll never ever be another you
There'll be another teardrop there'll be another raindrop
And there'll be another love that's true
Though love may come and love may go this one thing I surely know
There'll never ever be another you
No there'll never ever be another you