

Corey Hart, Water From The Moon

When I was a young boy
I called to my dreams
Prayed to a god that would know

Said I walk a thousand miles
To take one step
When does your vision show?

Then one day I found myself
Lost in the sand
Staring at the foolish stars
The innocent, so wise
Claim that soon
You can draw your water from the moon
You can draw your water from the moon

Now see the sunlight
And it's shinin' in my eyes
Will I keep the distance from the shore?
Understand the mystery
That I tried to ignore
Now I say I say no more

Prophet told the blind man
That one's hope
Something you cannot see
Take your right of passage
Through the dune
Where you can draw your water from the moon
You know where you can draw your water from the moon

Now I see the sunlight
It's shinin' in my eyes
Will I keep the distance from the shore?
I understand the mystery
That I tried to ignore
Now I say now I say no more

When I was a young boy
I prayed to my dreams
Through melody and rhyming words
Whenever I must face
Days of gloom
I can draw my water from the moon

I can draw my water from the moon
I've drawn my water from the moon

Cos you can draw your water from the moon

I said I've drawn my water from the moon
