Counting Crows, Mercy

(Kurt Stevenson, Patrick Winningham, & Driginally recorded for the Georgia soundtrack

I got a feeling of unrighteousness bitter cold hollow bitterness down the road I walk with loneliness mercy will follow me I'm told Beneath this skin there lies a heart of stone It's growing old so very far, from home but a heart of gold I may someday own? and mercy will follow me, I'm told mercy will you follow me mercy will you follow me to the final breath at last I take mercy will you follow me mercy will you follow me Till the chain of this old world I finally break. My sister sang songs so sweet and sad bout a man whos love I never had there's a train bound for gillian? mercy will follow me I'm told mercy will you follow me mercy will you follow me till my final breath at last I take mercy will you follow me mercy will you follow me Till the chains of this old world I finally break Till the chains of this old world I finally break Till the chains of this old world I finally break
