

Craig's Brother, My Anne

Darling I want to make the word "love" new cause it's been said so many times
And I don't want to use that old pick up line
And off' I try to find the words to use but none capture the way I feel
When I gaze at your smile it seems like I'm out flying a sunset skyline You've stolen my eyes, I stare at what I can't describe. I guess I tried Look in my eyes. It's not hard to realize I'm the one who loves you

And though you'll never know my heart, my complete feelings
Just know you'll never be alone

Words keep cluttering in my mind as I persist in this futility
But no vocabulary could ever represent the beauty I see You're everything and more than I could want you to be
And in your face what do I see?

It's like a rainbow in my mind, like when the daylight starts to die
Just like a landscape catching rain or like a snow glazed mountain face Like Charlie Chaplain, like clapping one hand, my love can not be heard
And all those love songs, they come out all wrong cause there's just no such word, my Annie

Look in my eyes.
It's not hard to realize I'm the one who loves you
And though you'll never know my heart, my full emotion
Just know you'll never be alone, my Annie