

Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, Sanibel

Denny Sarokin

There's a ship
And it sails a sea of light
On it's way to me tonight
From a distant shore
Taking me home once more

And the waves
And the whistling of the wind
Make me come alive again
My destiny's at my door

Going to leave this town forever
And go where I'll never
Need an overcoat no more, where they cry ...

Ooh lalalala, every night and every day
Sitting by the Gulf coast just a thousand miles away
Where they cry ...
Ooh lalalala, on an island I will dwell
Starlit nights in paradise on the Isle of Sanibel

There's a girl
And I see her dressed in white
As she lies there in the night
I can hear her cry
Where has he gone and why

But she knows
That someday he will arrive
And it keeps her love alive

Dreams can never die

She looks across the ocean

At sails in motion

In the early morning sky, where they cry ...

Angels of the water, sirens of the sea

Whispering there sweet love songs

Calling out to me
