

Crucified, Hateworld

a scream is heard from the street outside another soul that is ready to die when hope is lost there's no need to go on that soul is crushed by the dread of the thought that life is no more than waiting for death from the day of birth to the final breath where is the reason, the reason to life? it's nowhere in sight, and I'd know it if I'd seen it searching...gotta find a point to it all nothing...no...

there's nothing it's empty
there's nothing it's empty
there's nothing it's dying there's nothing - in hateworld at every turn another light goes dim all around me it's closing in my life is fading but the pain goes on it never stops - keeps pushing on no choice but to be hard as life is itself what else you gonna do when you've known nothing else? but deep down inside that ain't no way to live there has got to be something more to this this world - empty though its promises are many expectations so high that none can hope to fulfill all these impossible standards that they've convinced us are real lead to nothing but anger, frustration and hate but you don't have to live that life there's hope with change children of the Son in a world of hate it's the only chance you've got call on his name...

save me...
oh Lord, save me
this place is evil
this world is headed for its due demise with mankind's corruption destruction lies you can taste the tension, feel the strain the world's weak foundations are giving way then this grand illusion, this immaculate lie will rot and crumble leaving nowhere to hide God's call you've heard, and he is waiting do you want the change or will you die saying...