

Crucifix, See Through Their Lies

I can't forget what seemed like yesterday the memories of war they just won't fade see through their lies the years i was there, it seems so far away everyone tried to ignore it, saying it'll go away it never went away, no matter how much we pretend
the lives that were lost, the wounds will never mend
see through their lies
the living envyig the dead, many will never know it's hard to believe in a cheap thing called hope slept under mosquito nets, we used kerosene lamps i remember the discomfort, the air was so damp
see through their lies at times i couldn't even breathe cos the nights were so hot i remember scratching my arms til they almost bled they kept telling me war never hurt anyone it's all part of life, you got to take ir if you want to be strong
see through their lies
they were only lying to themselves cos the war is still goin on and my heart sank for past that's gone

&lt;font size=1&gt;Thanks to Auntie War (inmyangrychair@collegeclub.com) for these lyrics&lt;/font&gt;