Crystal Lewis, Reach Out

I've felt this way for a while like time is stealing my smile away like darkness holds the day

I'm running at a break-neck pace as if in a race but what do I stand to win to cross the line again

I'm too tired to sleep I need to find peace Is this where my rest begins

When I reach out to you reach out to you (there I find a hiding place) reach out to you (there I find a source of strength) reach out to you

So busy I can barely breathe temptation seems to keep me off of my knees yet that is where I want to be

I'm sitting in the shallow end a pool of good intent distraction has my feet it pulls me underneath

Now it's sink or swim throw the life line in God show me what I should do

When I reach out to you reach out to you (there I find a joy divine) reach out to you(there I find a peace of mind)

reach out to you reach out to you reach out to you reach out to you reach out to you

I have failed and yet still you give, I get I remain amazed at that
