

Dance Gavin Dance, The Importance Of Cocaine

"The Importance Of Cocaine" this hits too close to home for me and I don't need to be reminded of this pain in dwelled so long on the possible changes every step forward was a fall towards your demise

(the secret lives of wives)
and i beg you
please don't go tonight
and I beg you
please just come back down to earth to build this trust in which we have learned to recreate

(the secret lives of wives)
and you beg me
please don't go tonight
and I beg you

your pride won't let you ride and you said when will you give it up I won't fail
I'm not leaving you and me
and this will fall how will we get it back up (and I thought this candid smile was worn down) (lying to suite the mood shop for ties to hang myself with) and you say this ended in arrogance caused by my vanity oh where will you be well maybe you just looked too hard or maybe I don't look enough who will decide our fate how will you align this with love how will you end this with glory oh and don't let this go and don't let me go just let this down

(stricken close to the heat) (and I'm biting a line burn in wheat fields) (shop for ties to hang myself with)
