

Daniel Lanois, Lonely One

please, dim those party lights lonely one, this is your song late at night, driving on into the black of memory into the life of the wild and free lonely one, without a friend foreign city, the road it bends into the dreams that last till dawn another day has just begun lonely one, let your mind dream on of a town that lingers on savor the taste of your days you'll find your place when you find your way lonely one, lonely one
