Dave Dudley, For Crying Out Loud

If I've ever been so blue I can't remember seems to me the walls are closing in
I still hear your footsteps fade away forever
Well for crying out loud I'm crying out loud again I'm crying out loud again
There's nothing like a room that's filled with blackness
And without you here it's blacker than it's been
You said goodbye as if you couldn't careless
Well for crying out loud I'm crying out loud again I'm crying out loud again
Staring at the red end of my cigarette
Where in the darkness two had always been
Now the hurt grows worse each night I'm trying to forget
Well for crying out loud I'm crying out loud again I'm crying out loud again
