

David Houston, Mental Journey

If I've ever planted flowers in your garden
Or my feet walked across your bedroom floor
Don't be surprised if I'd break the silence of the night with a knock upon your door
I'm just taking a mental journey
And my thoughts may wander back from time to time
Don't be alarmed cause I mean you no harm
I'm just walking with the mem'ries of my mind
[steel]
When loneliness surrounds me and my future is my past I escape into my dreams
I carefully choose in mem'ries from the medals of my past
That once were dreams and once again
I'm just taking a mental journey...
I'm just taking a mental journey...
