

David Kushner, Miserable Man

Let's pack our stuff now and runaway we can't be all what we want in this small town our life was rough so lets make our days what we want and i'll give you my last name we'll take our chances after all these let downs lets keep our patience until ourselves are found all we wanted was a place to feel like home thats why we parted from our ways to heal our soul

im a small town miserable man that does what he can

mmm i'm a miserable man

it's been some years now and we're okay we have some kids and built our dream house we're eating dinner so we're saying grace without the light we wouldn't find our way how are we standing from misery to this now? cuz we've been stranded to screaming this out loud all we wanted was a place to feel like home thats why we parted from our ways to heal our soul

that does what we can
