

Dealership, You're Dumb

Clipped and cute as hell; you've got to see them (yeah).
That was the time, us in our prime, that was the time.

If you believe in peace on earth then you're dumb
Life like a folksong that you can hum
If you believe in peace on earth then you're dumb
Pop all your dreams in your bubblegum
If you believe in peace on earth then you're dumb
I'd lend a hand but it's just too numb
If you believe in peace on earth then you're dumb
It's never that fun, it's never that easy

Sift through sandy shells our last vacation.
That was the time, us in our prime, that was the time.
If you listen well, you'll hear the ocean.
That was the time, us in our prime, that was the time.

I think how we used to joke about your sense of immortality.
I think how we used to make believe I couldn't swim;
I'd throw myself into the sea (the waves crash over me)
Then you'd come and rescue me.

Time betrays this tale as if I'm dreaming.
Words - an empty shell, a lack of meaning.
