

Dean Strickland, Who Needs You?

Never mind the negative words that they may say about us
We'll be fine if in ourselves we just remember to trust
They don't even know what our struggles have been like
We have all done what we've had to do to survive
Everytime I open my eyes I see they just don't care
In my ears I surely hear all the hateful lies of theirs
I surround myself with my friends
The ones of whom I can depend
I do hope that you'll be one of them but if you can't

Who needs you?
I won't let you bring me down
You be you
And If I should chose to be the clown
Let me be myself or just leave me alone
'Cause there's no point in trying to do what can't be done
And you can't change me 'cause I don't wanna change
If you think you must then all I have to say
Who needs you?
Who needs you?

I do wish that we could all just get along
But it's very obvious those that think they know it all
Well I don't claim to know of anything
That might bring this hostile world a little more peace
If you're one of those that don't like my kind
Still I hope for you that your dreams you'll find

But who needs you?
I won't let you bring me down
You be you
And If I should chose to be the clown
Let me be myself or just leave me alone
'Cause there's no point in trying to do what can't be done
And you can't change me 'cause I don't wanna change
If you think you must then all I have to say
Who needs you?
Who needs you?
