

Dear Whoever, Breaking The Silence With Your L

Was that you saying something? I probably heard wrong. You couldn't have spoken more clearly to

I would have believed in anything that you could have told me. But I couldn't even understand what I would have believed anything you told me. But you couldn't speak at all.

All I heard was the sound of breathing, your attempt to stall. Silence means nothing, silence be no

I would have believed in anything that you could have told me.

But I couldn't even understand what was under your breath.

Take this for what you're worth, your day is over and you never knew in the ways that I tried showing