

Deb Talan, Cherry Trees

beautiful fragile summer blossoms in a frost open to the world brief and lovely a momentary spark leaves in fall fire on the sky blaze our memory with a visual tattoo to keep at bay the dreary o f bleak and cold and blue but we can keep warm all year long i know how to every each day through i want to do with you what spring does with the cherry trees i want to do with you what spring does
i want to do with you what spring does
with the cherry trees
i want to do with you what spring does sometimes our love is like a mountain solid and steep grounded in heat and sometimes we rage like a river cold and fast then quiet and deep we ride the storm 'cause when it's through we have changed and love is new i want to do with you what spring does with the cherry trees
i want to do with you what spring does
i want to do with you what spring does
i want to do with you what spring does
