Decibully, Small Circles

i liked you best when the sky was the limit when you tasted like an ocean that i thought i'd never swim in the morning you'd kiss me like you might never see me again i can't keep you warm if you're hiding from the sun i ran small woven circles through the kitchen that employed me and brought dinner to you in a small paper bag what we could see through the ivy was a world not worth watching you'd lay by me and translate songs i will never sing i didn't know i'd always lose the feeling when you go i smoke the night and watch the ashes fall and singe then i'll make new friends then i'll smoke them out of my life again