Deep Purple, Watching The Sky

I sit here alone I sit here alone I look at the walls Look at the walls Look at the walls I look at the walls

You shouldn't be out on your own
Oh no not with a condition like that
Oh no sir constant care
A condition like that, a condition so rare
A penny for the guy, a penny for your thoughts
One a penny, two a penny in your pocket
Ding dong bell, who can tell
Wild man fisher got nothing on me

I sit by the water
I sit by the water
Watch it go by
Clouds going by
I'm watching the sky

I left my luggage at the station Didn't know how to say goodbye I walked away from all the fury And the madness and the fury And the madness

I smile to myself I smile to myself

You're on the blind side, i'm on the other side Now i'm on the outside looking for another side Upside down side, i'm still lucid I may be crazy but i'm not stupid Try to get out, the parking lot's full No matter, no matter, what's a man going to do One two buckle my shoe Zip my lip
