

Del Amitri, Just Like A Man

I still don't believe it, how much we lied
Last night you made it with him now I'm supposed to be dignified
Just like a man
Well I spend my night times drinking and you spend your days in bed
And I guess it's up to us to choose the methods by which we forget
And just like a man he holds you gently
And just like a man he strokes your hair
And just like a man I still pretend that I'm
Immune to the whole affair
But I wanna die, I wanna cry, I wanna tell you I was wrong
Yeh I wanna die, I wanna cry but it's too late
So I soldier on just like a man
I don't believe it, you were easy to leave but now
I do my best to relieve it the only way I know how
Just like a man
And I don't wanna possess you, I don't wanna take his place
But I don't wanna see my last few pleasures written all over his face
And just like a man he holds you gently
And just like a man he strokes your hair
And just like a man I still pretend that I'm
Immune to the whole affair
But I wanna die, I wanna cry, I wanna tell you I was wrong
Yeh I wanna die, I wanna cry but it's too late
So I soldier on just like a man
And I have something to tell you but it doesn't matter now
I'll stick to small talk and leave the little bits of flattery to him
And I could call you but why would I bother to
You might not be in or he might misunderstand
Just like a man
