

Delight, More

all you could have is still not enough every day it makes for less you silence your thoughts to make the pain stop no tears since lies are better to get all you can have but still not enough

burning your way higher and higher you never care to look down ambition swallows your heart's desires you're watching it close this wall around just to think the world could end today picture yourself fading away faced with the end you'd see the real sense things you can have are nothing to gain

all you can have
but still not enough

just to think the world could end today
picture yourself fading away
faced with the end you'd see the real sense
things you can have are nothing to gain