Diana Ross, Tell Me Again

(Wintley Phipps)

You alone know how I feel down deep inside I promised you I'll never stray from by your side But now I'm looking back on all those yesterdays The many times I let you down I'm begging I can hear you say

Tell me again that you love me And you'll love me till the stars fall from the sky Tell me again that you love me And the love you have for me will never die

I can tell when first we start to drift apart The emptiness just takes hold of my wounded heart You know I need to feel you by my side 'Cause when the night is cold and I've been so bold There's no need to hide

Just tell me again that you love me That you'll love me till the stars fall from the sky Tell me again that you love me And the love you have for me will never die

And if you light the way I will follow you into that land of gladness No more sadness

Tell me again that you love me That you'll love me till the stars fall from the sky Tell me again that you love me And the love you have for me The love you have for me will never die