

Diana Ross, We're Always Saying Goodbye

Stranger before
Lovers and then
People become Strangers again

All things born
Knowing they'll die
We're always saying goodbye

Children make friends
Holding them near
People change times
Friends disappear

Life must go on
Children must cry
We're always saying goodbye

Rivers go on and on
The sun always shines
The people just run out of time

Why are we here
Where do we go
Just when we've learn the little we know
Life , love and dreams
End with the sigh
We're always saying goodbye

Rivers go on and on
The sun always shines
Why do people just run out of time

Why are we here
Where do we go
Just when we've learn the little we know
Life , love and dreams
End with the sigh
somebody somewhere knows why

We're always saying goodbye
