

Diane Cluck, Wild Deer At Dawn

Look at the wild deer
Tumbling out from the woods
To drink the water
I count twenty-seven or so
Drinking the bay from beneath our small boat

Now that I've calmed down my heart beat unsteady but it isn't Noe that I've calmed down my heart beat unsteady but listening now it goes
Beat... beat... beat... beat...

Look at the wild deer
Tumbling out from the wood to drink by the shore
I count twenty-seven or more
Sun rises up from out oars

Now that I've calmed down my heart beats so steady you could set your watch by me
Now that I've calmed down my heart beats so steady you could set your watch by my beat
