

Diffuser, Leaving With A California Tilt

I never thought the day would come when she would say goodbye
Shes leaving with a california tilt to live her life instead
Im getting tired of holding back the words i want to say
I ran myself into the ground just hoping you would stay

She left on her own through stepping stones

She left on her own again

Everything has got to end but good things never leave
A southern man once told me that love isnt what it means

She left on her own through twisted roads
