</lyrics>

There must still be the soul that you have left behind, hidden somewhere in the deep, deep of the forest, lying among the trees

People who are too tired they just dont look around any farther
They disappear into the eternal darkness of a foreign place

Could we still have seen it if we were there?
Could weve seen if we were little?

We go on with our lives and lose those things behind
Wrapped around in lies we stand there voiceless
We wander and live our lives until we find a way
Searching for the light for eternity

Things are passing and changing and moving around but the colors of the sky
Still remain the same as we used to know every single day

We are running so free now ignoring the risk, the limits that we had
We leave our fears behind; take another chance, our souls will live again

If we catch the rhythm of time
We could probably fly so high

We go on with our lives and lose those things behind
Wrapped around in lies we stand there voiceless
We wander and live our lives until we find a way
Searching for the light for eternity

We go on with our lives and lose those things behind
Wrapped around in lies we stand there voiceless
We wander and live our lives until we find a way
Searching for the light for eternity

We go on with our lives and lose those things behind
Wrapped around in lies we stand there voiceless
We wander and live our lives until we find a way
Searching for the light for eternity

We go on with our lives for eternity
Searching for the light for eternity
