

Doctrine X, Last Hour Dawn

Every time I say these words
A part of me is screaming for more
Time to make things straight again
And give them what they expect
For this moment I was born
To feed you with fear and watch as you fall
You will try but you won't deceive me
I am the reason for every being
No one will ever understand
How it comes to the end
The fire will consume it all
This is the last hour dawn

You're divided by the same emptiness
With a smile you're fading to ash

More reasons to turn the lights down
This tragic feeling rips you apart

How much worse could it get
The blood still tastes the same

Still longing for the promised home
You're lost and like me you'll be gone

No one will ever understand
How it all comes to the end

The fire will consume it all
This is the last hour dawn
