

Dogma, Risk

Baptized in some dirty water
Capsized in an ocean of bad dreams
There was something that hid inside
Something that knew my name

Paralyzed at a vacant station
It makes me sink, it makes me wonder why
If there was some way I could ease the pain
Some way to start again

I would do anything
Well, I would do anything
Well, I would do anything to feel alive today

Memories can give you solace
Enemies can teach you tolerance
There are somethings that you know inside
Know instinctively

Mesmerized by the mental traffic
It makes me think, it makes me wonder why
I was hoping I could ease the strain
And take a chance again

Well, I would give anything
Well, I would give anything
Well, I would give anything to feel alive today

There is something that I needed, something that I heard about
Some way I could figure this all out
'Cause I'm bored with all the answers and I'm drunk on self importance
I can't see beyond the walls I've built to keep my fears outside, yeah

Well, I would do anything
Well, I would do anything
Well, I would do anything to feel alive today