

Dolly Parton, Headlock On My Heart

(Dolly Parton)

Backstory:

Tabloid prediction: Dolly Parton will announce she's falling madly in love with a 300 pound profess

Dolly: Now this actually came out in this magazine. Now, you folks I'm sure buy these every week

Song:

The first time that I saw him
Was in a wrestling magazine.
Then I watched him on TV,
Then I bought a ringside seat.

His name was Starlight Starbright,
The greatest in the land.
He sprinkled stardust in my eyes
I was his biggest fan.

He's got a headlock on my heart.
It was a takedown from the start.
He's a master of the art.
He's got a headlock on my heart.

Spoken:

Referee: 300 pounds of magic right here in the ring tonight.

Starlight Starbright: Wrestling fans, big and small, who's the greatest of them all?

Dolly: Starlight! Starlight Starbright! Starlight! Starlight Starbright!

He dazzled 'em with brilliance,
He outshined all the rest.
And I loved the heart that beat

Beneath his massive golden chest.

Spoken:

Dolly: In this ring, I thee wed.

Referee: Do you take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife?

Starlight Starbright: I do!

Referee: And do you take this man to be your lawful wedded husband?

Dolly: I do, I truly do!

Referee: I now pronounce you man and wife.

Dolly: Uh, you may now kiss the bride.

He's got a headlock on my heart,
That it may likely never part.
He knew the ropes right from the start.
He's got a headlock on my heart.

Spoken:

Dolly: Well, it's a whole new arena for me,
But it's a whole new wrestling match for him.
I guess you could say he pinned me down for a lifetime.

He's got a headlock on my heart.
It was a takedown from the start.
He's a master of the art.
He's got a headlock on my heart.

He's got a headlock on my heart,

That it may likely never part.
He knew the ropes right from the start.
He's got a headlock on my heart.