

Don McLean, Did You Know

Did you know that love can grow any place where people go,
And I can tell by what I see that you have found a place with me.
The sun is high the day is new and
I have found a place with you.

Ev'ry place and ev'ry face casts a spell and leaves a trace,
With you in mind and with you near, the myth is gone, the past is clear
And here with scars of now and then so you and I begin again.

Did you know I've been searchin'? Did you know I've been blind?

Did you know I've been touchin' anything I could find?

Did you know that here below, moving where my feelings flow,
You live with me in time that's new, suspended in a love that's true
And far beyond the fatal noise and bathed in all life's simple joys.

Did you know that love can grow any place where people go,
And I can tell by what I see that you have found a place with me.
