

Don't Look Down, Visiting Hours Are Over all this time it felt right you were in teh dark I was waiting for you to see all the wrong inside of me waiting around for your touch waiting around as the silence forms and the dial tone lets me know that i'm alone i've been falling out wanting out these last few months trying to sort it out or wait it out, it's what we do best I turned and I walked out while you were standing still we fell SO FAST

we never asked without love can this moment last?
I lost so much in this place I wanted so bad just to bring you out away from doubt away from all we know all the trust between us has never seemed to last we've been waiting here just to see something that we'll never be fighting for breath 'til the end breaking our will as we see this through we always knew we might not make it back
