

Donna Fargo, Hot Diggety Dog

I think I'll lay down on the banks of the corners of my mind
Send my mem'ries and dreams for a walk
While I listen to the sunset as it hides behind the mountain
Give the clouds in the sky a chance to talk
And make friends with a world that I daydream and love in
And shake hands with the freedom at my feet
Yes I will lay me down and let me breathe the ripples of the water
Flowing from a little mountain creek
And tell the world what I think of it and holler out I love you
And chase a little butterfly with some little boy or girl
A running barefoot on the concrete of this beautiful creation
Hot diggety dog hot diggety world hot diggety dog hot diggety world
[ guitar + steel ]
I'll pick the petals of a daisy that says everybody loves me
And no one can do me wrong along the way
And I'll stretch out my arms say I'm glad that I was born
And make everyday a day like today
Yes I'll make music with the birds and the bees in the forest
And consider every raindrop a pearl
And just for a while I'll set me free of myself and love this ole hot diggety world
Hot diggety dog hot diggety world hot diggety dog hot diggety world
Hot diggety dog hot diggety world hot diggety diggety diggety dog hot diggety world