

Dopamine, Nothing To Lose

Well i don't mind if, if you waste away
In fact i'd like to see it, cos i can feel your pain
You said you needed me, when i was hating you
It's just a state of mind that we've both been through

Well i can take it, if you've had enough
It seems lately that we've given up
There's nothing left to lose
At least it seems that way and all the things you said come flooding back again

One fine day the wind will change, and we will all be left alone
Where will you be then without me to hold
You live for yesterday, i never asked you to

What do you want me to be?

One fine day the wind will change, and we will all be left alone
Where will you be then without me to hold
There's nothing left to lose, i never lived for you I know you asked me to.

What do you want me to be?
