

Doug Stone, The Rock

She used to stand at the jukebox with her hand full of change quarters and teardrops falling like rain
she was so tender and i was too tough she gave her all and i held back too much she turned to me Now there's someone new by her side tonight she's over me i can see in her eyes they'll be together
she was so tender and i was too tough she gave her all and i held back too much she turned to me
she turned to me and i turned to stone i'm the rock she broke her heart on