

Dougie MacLean, Silently Sad

Now I've got the silence I wanted and now I can feel all the little things I was afraid I might lose it's a moment so special but I know that I've got till the morning to take it anyway that I choose and I want to be silently sad I need to be more than alone when the air's getting bad and I've needed someone like you in all the dreams that I've had

I know who you're watching and you know who he is but I'm not going to tell you in case you don't understand and you know that you know him but you're frightened to say so you turn to the lady who's holding hard on your hand

CHORUS

- Oh no, it's not me that's holding the crown
- the clearer I'm seeing, the more I believe in that long journey down

A kiss for the morning a smile for the day that's beginning a tear for what's not going to stay and it could have been easy and it could be so hard but we're not going to cry because we made it that way
