

Down To Earth Approach, Honey and Vinegar

If it makes you smile, then you should run away
'Cause it feels so good to pack it all and leave
If it makes you happy, then go right ahead
Put your feet on the ground and leave it all again
And I accept your concerns
But I know that it's not right
Let's call it what it is
And what it is
Is dead to me
It will be too long until I see your face
As happy as it was before you drifted away
And lost yourself to your responsibilities
Somewhere in the middle of acceptance and rejection
You never go where you've never been
And you live your life as if everything
Is just one more thing to bear
This is a burden, but I can see if it makes you happy
