

Downhere, Don't Miss Now

The life you chose There's never a list for it
Of cons and pros
You find what you love,
and you commit

And you're looking so far down
The road so well
That you could forget your crown Isn't just somewhere else

You get bumped and bruised and worse
For choosing the road less traveled
You know the reward is rich
If you persist through the darkest battles
Open your eyes
Your prize is right before you somehow Whatever you do,
just don't miss now

You're on a bus Don't notice the miles and months fly by
To the rest of us You're living
the highest kind of life

I know the price you pay Is costlier than it seems But it's worth another day
The end justifies your means

All that you're working for Could blind you to the treasures all around you So don't miss these moments, please
The joy before the crown you seek
