

Dr. Hook & The Medicine Show, Hearts Like Yours

(D. Locorriere)

Let's talk about hearts, no two are the same
Some of them are cold as ice, others need the flame
One of them gets comfortable, the other needs a change
But hearts like yours and mine, hearts like yours and mine
Hearts like yours and mine, take pleasure in the pain
Some hearts break too easily, some are hard as stone
One heart cries for company, the other cries alone
Other loves can walk away, but still our hearts remain
'Cause hearts like yours and mine, hearts like yours and mine
Hearts like yours and mine, take pleasure in the pain
There's pleasure in the pain, sunlight through the rain, daylight through the dark
And 'though we know the hurt, we know how much it's worth to stay here where we are
Other loves can walk away, but still our hearts remain
'Cause hearts like yours and mine, hearts like yours and mine
Hearts like yours and mine, take pleasure in the pain
There's pleasure in the pain, sunlight through the rain, daylight through the dark
And 'though we know the hurt, we know how much it's worth to stay here where we are
Hearts like yours and mine
Hearts like yours and mine
Hearts like yours and mine
There's hearts like yours and there's hearts like mine
