Dream Theater, Lines In The Sand

Sometimes, for a moment of bliss And the passion, we're craving There's a message we miss Sometimes when the spirits left alone We must believe in something To find if we've grown

Tragic reflex, shattered calm Static progress, senses gone Numb awareness, final psalm

Swept away with the tide Through the holes in my hands Crown of thorns At my side drawing lines in the sand

Sometimes, if you're perfectly still You can hear the virgin weeping For the savior of your will Sometimes, your castles in the air And the fantasies you're seeking

Are the crosses you bear

Sacred conflict, blessed prize Weeping crosses, stainless eyes Desperate addict, faith disguised

Swept away with the tide
Through the holes in my hands
Crown of thorns
At my side drawing lines in the sand

We fabricate our demons
Invite them into our homes
Have supper with the aliens
And fight the war alone
We conjure up our skeletons
Enlist the den of theives
Frightened from our closets
Then sewn upon our sleeves

In the stream of consciousness There is a river crying Living comes much easier

Once we admit We're dying

Sometimes, in the wreckage of our wake There's a bitterness we harbor And hate for hatred's sake Sometime we dig an early grave And crucify our instincts For the hope we couldn't save

Sometimes a view from sinless eyes Centers our perspective And pacifies our cries Sometimes the anguish we survive And the mysteries we nurture Are the fabrics of our lives

Swept away with the tide

Through the holes in my hands Crown of thorns At my side drawing lines in the sand