

Droge Pete, Hampton Inn Room 306

I got in late last night, my hotel room was stale and cold
I closed the blinds and looked for a movie
Turned up the heat and put the scotch on ice picked up the phone and I dialed your number
Felt a relief when I heard your voice
We talked for an hour, three hours difference
I could not sleep so I called you back
I'm not calling to say I love you
I'm not calling to say I care
I'm not calling to say I want you here
I think by now those things are clear to us both
But I tell you everyday, 'cause it makes me feel better babe
I woke up, the telephone was ringing
I thought it's be the housekeeper with a gripe
Then I heard your voice and it simply soothed me
Sayin' honey did you sleep all right
Are you calling to say you love me
Are you calling to say you care
Are you calling to say you want me there
In your bed when you wake up
Well I do too, and I'll tell you everyday 'cause it makes me feel better babe
Yeah it makes me feel better babe
