

Dropout Year, It Wasn't Over, It Still Isn't Over

So tonight we will reunite under the eyes of this summer sky to find what we left behind. with years and tonight we will re-ignite sparks that flew but burned out and died then justified us to say goodbye so much left unsaid, we just left instead of fixing things. we settled for being just friends. I don't want

if I try and hold your hand would you hold the past against me? we don't have much time to waste for why are we keeping our chemistry a secret from ourselves while everyone else can see that there's so much left unsaid, we just left instead of fixing things. we settled for being just friends. I don't want

if I try and hold your hand would you hold the past against me, we don't have much time to waste for so tonight we will reunite under the eyes of this summer sky to find what we left behind.

if I try and hold your hand would you hold the past against me, we don't have much time to waste for

i've been waiting for this day