

Dubaldo Marie Claire, Only Human

ONLY HUMAN (Marie Claire D'Ubaldo)

Our childhood heroes finally fall mighty dreamers live no more locked away inside a memory left behind they seem to call We have a voice that no one hears words are broken by the years Don't blame us for your expectations we're only human with our limitations standing here on these feet of clay we're only human, human that way How the future slowly disappears just a little more each day in the ordinary world outside dreamers have no part to play Don't blame us for your expectations
we're only human with our limitations
standing here on these feet of clay
we're only human, human that way
And if we turn our backs and walk away it's just because we've nothing left to say Don't blame us for your expectations
we're only human with our limitations
standing here on these feet of clay
we're only human, human that way