

Ducky Boys, Crumbling Heart

Seems like a short time since we said our last goodbye
It's hard to think so much time seen passed us by It's been such a long long time
Now I'm staring at the mirror at this suit
I'm looking older but i still feel in my youth
I guess I just let it pass by

I lost another chip of my crumbling heart
I lost another chip of my crumbling heart
Our time's slipping away

I'm 27 and the pages of my life keep flashing by but I could stop and cry
I could cry for the lost time
The times when I could've had my voice be heard
I walked away for no reason in the world
Those times are gone for the last time

I lost another chip of my crumbling heart
I lost another chip of my crumbling heart
Our time's slipping away

Here's a toast to all the times we've had
Raise your glass to the good times and the bad
here's a song to all the friends we've had
Here's a toast to all the times we've had
Raise your glass to the good times and the bad
here's a song to all the friends we've had

Our time's slipping away
Our time's slipping away...
But I'm still alive
