Duxius, Good Move

As if I was in a quiz or a test as if I was playing chess I hold on to the illusion sometimes get lost in confusion I'm looking for a true or a false juggling choices like juggling balls I'm scanning for a zero, or one while my conclusions come undone

And I can't make up my mind there's no right path to find and all that I can achieve is to make a choice and believe the future will prove was that a good move

Diagnose my disease give it a name show me where I went wrong in the game what's the equation that I want to resolve tell me what to look up and whom to consult certainty is the thing that sometimes you can't even hope for in science so don't expect to find it in the chaos of your mind

And I can't make up my mind there's no right path to find and all that I can achieve is to make a choice and believe the future will prove was that a good move
