Dwight Yoakam, Throughout All Time

Chorus:

I'll still see you walking, silently
Through the shadows in my mind
A vision of your sweet blue eyes
Creeps into my dreamful sleep at night
You still haunt the deepness of my memories
I guess you will throughout all time

Little girl I still remember
The very dress you wore on that day
It was so soft, a shade of violet, Lord
How it took my breath away

As the sunshine of the morning Broke across your golden hair How I wished to hold you tightly, Lord But I was shy and did not dare

Chorus:

I'll still see you walking, silently
Through the shadows in my mind
A vision of your sweet blue eyes
Creeps into my dreamful sleep at night
You still haunt the deepness of my memories
I guess you will throughout all time

--- Instrumental ---

Many nights I've sat and wondered If you might be somebody's wife But if you're not, I'd long to see you If just to tell you how I've pined

I've been known to ask a stranger That I thought might just pass your way If they would tell you of these feelings That we might meet again someday

Chorus:

I'll still see you walking, silently
Through the shadows in my mind
A vision of your sweet blue eyes
Creeps into my dreamful sleep at night
You still haunt the deepness of my memories
I guess you will throughout all time

You still haunt the deepness of my memories I guess you will throughout all time

I guess you will throughout all time...
