

East 17, Thunder

chorus

when the thunder calls you,
from the mountain's high,
its time to spread your wings and fly, (spread your wings and fly)
when the thunder calls you,
under purple sun
to the place where horses run when i saw your face i knew you were the one in a sky that filled with rain a ray of sun
i called you on the phone said your happy on your own when i heard you bodie cry for my loove
your bodies calling me
your b&acute;dies calling i think im fallin (woooow)

a picture in my mind a vision in a dream
when the storm destroyed the bridge i walked across have you ever fell alone when you stood within i croud on a path you thought you knew but feel alone

i all confused like a child wht a choice of toys so much to gain
so much to lose
like a pain you endure more then enjoy
i guess im goin crazy everyones tellin me so do you feel the same well its all i need to know

(when the thunder)
(when it calls you)
to the place were horses run (were the horses run)
(from a mountin high)
(when the thunder)
