Eddie From Ohio, Step Into The Outside queen sophia wanders in between these castle walls says this ain't what I call living my shadow chases me in and through these castle halls and still it's not forgiving sure I have some jewels and some pretty clothes but there's no one here to see them and if you were here I'd find you in your lovers' throes singing about your freedom

step into the outside, when the rain is falling down step into the outside, take a breath before you drown step into the outside, if you need a little lift rub the sleep from your bloodshot eyes and step into the outside sophia's got a notebook of promises tucked away of all the things she's going to do and when... but now it's underneath her mattress underneath her skin sophia says if i don't get out soon i'll lose my mind take me anywhere surprise me just leave my suitors and the secret service men behind or else the crowd will recognize me and then i'll have to smile and wave and blow kisses to their children so quick get me a wig and a pair of shades and i'll be running for my freedom
