Edyta Górniak, The Day Before The Rain

I took a picture of my life Now fading colors turn black and white If I could catch the sands of time I could build a castle with a place to hide Oh baby, have you seen us lately Can we stop to see what road we're on?

We must have shared a million smiles
When love was full of wonder, and life was just a game
We must have danced a thousand miles
But we didn't hear the thunder
The day before the rain

We had to climb the rock of love And watch our dreams unfold in front of us How did we slip, why did we fall? Maybe we just didn't hear each other call Oh baby, have you seen us lately Can we stop to see what road we're on?

We must have shared a million smiles When love was full of wonder, and life was just a game We must have danced a thousand miles But we didn't hear the thunder The day before the rain

All of my feelings, wiped away all my tears The day before the rain All of my days, I was keepin' my faith How was love washed away in the rain?

And love is full of wonder, life is just a game We must have danced forever baby But we didn't hear the thunder The day before, the day before the rain

We must have shared a million smiles And life was just a game ...a thousand miles But we didn't hear the thunder, The day before the rain

We must have shared forever Life was just a gam ...a thousand miles The day before the rain
